WASHINGTON SURPRISED

Fliers Oppose Idea of Giving
Up Attempt to Encircle
World

(By the Associated Press)
REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 8.—A conference called by Rear Admiral McQuarrie on the flagship Richmond today decided to make a final effort to find a feasible landing place for the American world fliers on the east coast of Greenland before reaching a final decision as to whether the remainder of the flight for the present year would have to be called off.

The cruiser Raleigh of the patrol fleet has been ordered to leave tomorrow morning to investigate ice conditions on the Greenland coast.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 8.—A conference was summoned by Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder of the flagship Richmond today to discuss the advisability of calling off the world flight due to ice conditions on the Greenland coast.

The report that a safe landing for the fliers on the east coast of Greenland had been found was declared without foundation and the advancing season makes further delay dangerous. The aviators declared they are willing to remain at Reykjavik until September 1, but refused to consider the possibility of fueling at sea from a cruiser.

Early this morning the admiral sent for William C. Watts of the cruiser Raleigh, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, leader of the flight, and Maj. Clarence E. Crumrine of the army air service when receipt of further discouraging news from the Danish government's steamer Gertrud Rask with supplies for the airmen off the east Greenland coast.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Army air service officials declared today that no dispatches had been received from the army advance party accompanying the world fliers or from the naval convoy which indicated any necessity for abandoning the world flight. Latest official reports received were decidedly optimistic and press dispatches describing the conference called by Rear Admiral Magruder to discuss the advisability of calling off the flight came as a complete surprise.

Ada Merchants to Buy Moderate Priced Goods

Reports from the business houses of Ada show that popular price merchandise will predominate in the fall and winter stocks.

Buyers for the various dry goods stores say they will increase their stock on the prospect of a good crop but will buy medium priced goods rather than the high priced.

Those who have heretofore bought his priced merchandise almost exclusively report a cut of almost one-half. Where from $100 to $150 has been an average price on each garment, this year their average price will be from $75 to $100 and so with the lower averages.

The reason for the drop in quality is due to the safety of carrying medium priced merchandise. If the wonderful yield of cotton which is expected is not hindered in any way, business this fall, it is thought, will be better than any season since the war. If something should happen to the crops the merchants are not taking such a great risk as if they stocked up with high priced goods. Of course this does not mean that those customers who demand the better materials and the advantage as they see it, of the higher priced goods, will be disappointed in the least with the Ada markets, for a small stock will be carried by each dealer, but not as great a variety to choose from as in the more medium price.

The merchants are buying to meet the demands of more of the people than ever before and are applying the "Safety First" motto.

HUNT APPARENT WINNER OVER HIS OPPONENT

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8.—District Judge Albert C. Hunt of Tulsa appeared today to have won definitely over Vice Chief Justice Neil McNeill of Pawnee for the Democratic nomination for the state supreme court for the sixth district. With only 12 precincts out of 383 in the district missing the vote was: Hunt 15,543, McNeill 11,997.

Much Information for Aerial Photo Work, is Claim

(By the Associated Press)
TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 8.—Much in formation of scientific and economic value has resulted from the aerial photographs of the past two seasons according to Dr. A. M. Naraway, controller of Dominion Surveys, who presented a paper before the Geography section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science today.

Marked progress, Dr. Naraway said, has been made in mapping by oblique aerial photographs, the important mineralized areas in northern Manitoba and the intricate system of waterways in that district.

Information has also been obtained, said the speaker, as to the extent of the forest, and aerial photographs are also being used extensively in land classification and in soil surveys.

BANDIT IS SLAIN BY OFFICERS IN PITCHED BATTLE

Slain Bandit Proves to be Jeff Duree, Wanted for Bank Robberies

AIDED BY RELATIVES

Officers and Posse Surround
Motor Car; One Member Of Band Escapes

(By the Associated Press)
LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Aug. 8.—A bandit shot and killed by a sheriff's posse near Sedan, Kan., late yesterday was Jeff Duree, notorious mail robber, who was released from the local federal prison on bond last February, it was learned by prison authorities here today.

Duree was wanted in connection with a recent robbery of a bank at Lamont, Okla., and was recognized by the city marshal of Grenola when he drove into town with his wife last Saturday. Duree submitted to arrest but requested permission to drive to his home to change his clothes. The marshal granted his request. When they arrived at Duree's home the marshal was confronted by Elmer Downs, brother-in-law of Duree, and Charles Duree, a brother, both of whom were armed. They took the marshal's gun and fled. Late yesterday afternoon Sheriff Buckles was notified that the three were in the vicinity of Sedan. He organized a posse and started in pursuit.

Surrounded Motor Car.

The three men were surrounded in their motor car in the northwest part of the county. The suspects began shooting as the posse closed in and Jeff Duree was killed and Downs wounded.

Charles Duree escaped and commandeered a motor car driven by a woman telling her he was an officer in pursuit of bandits. The motor car was found some miles away but Duree had made his escape. Downs is being held in jail at Sedan.

Jeff and Dan Duree, George E. Downs and E. E. Dodge were arrested in Oklahoma three years ago on a charge of robbing a mail train. They were convicted in federal court at Guthrie and sentenced to the federal penitentiary. They were released here February 8, 1922. Jeff Duree was released on a bond of $10,000 approved by the federal court at Guthrie February 12 last. His appeal now is pending in the circuit court of appeals.

Affairs of Bank Still in Doubt After Suicide

(By the Associated Press)
PUTMAN, Conn., Aug. 8.—State Treasurer G. H. Gilpatrick, who shot himself at his home here yesterday after officials of the First National bank had called at his home and urgently requested him to come to the bank of which he was cashier, is reported to be still in a dangerous condition at the hospital today with small chance of recovery.

He gained consciousness during the night but refused to talk to any one or give an explanation of his attempt to take his life.

The state bank examiners who were summoned after the state treasurer was found shot, worked all night and are expected to continue the examination of the bank affairs today.

A special meeting of the directors of the bank was called today to take part in any emergency that might occur.

Dispute of Russia and Roumania Puts Shadows of War Over Europe

By Jackson V. Jacobs
Central Press Correspondent
PARIS, Aug. 8.—The new European war doesn't appear to be very far off. The trouble between Russia and Roumania over Bessarabia is a constant war menace, and a struggle with arms for possession of the territory probably would embroil most of Europe.

Bessarabia is a fertile region lying between the Dniester, Pruth and Danube rivers, with an area of about 17,000 square miles and some 2,000,000 population, predominantly Roumanian. Before the world war it belonged to Russia, having been ceded by Turkey in 1812.

Bessarabia now is in Roumanian possession, occupied by Roumanian troops in accordance with the Versailles treaty, but soviet Russia has never recognized this settlement. From time to time Russian troops are massed on the Bessarabian frontier, and the Roumanian military establishment in the disputed province is always large.

Russia in War Mood.
The most recent reports are that 300,000 Russian troops are massed along the Dniester, and Roumania is said to have concentrated virtually her entire army on the other bank. Only a spark is needed to set off the blast.

A Russo-Roumanian conference held in Vienna in April, broke up abruptly when Roumania refused to allow Bessarabia as one of the items to be discussed, and Russia at once intimated that if she couldn't do it any other way she would take Bessarabia back by force.

Russia's war minister, Trotsky, was reported after the break-up of the Vienna meeting to have made a warlike speech. He has since been more correctly reported to have said:

"Our request for a plebiscite in Bessarabia was refused by the Roumanians. At the time there was published a statement I was supposed to have made threatening war. I did not say anything of the kind, but I cannot guarantee there will never be a war over Bessarabia. Roumania has an army. So have we. They are there for something."

Roumania's situation is undoubtedly precarious. Since 1913 she has doubled her population by annexing territory.

Russo-Italian Pact Reported.
Roumania is a member of the Little Entente, along with the republic of Czechoslovakia and the kingdom of Yugoslavia. It's fellow members might commonly be supposed to stand ready to come to her aid in the event of war, but Roumania's partners have served notice upon her that Bessarabia is the business of Bucharest exclusively, and that Roumania cannot count on military assistance from them in the event of war with Russia.

This fact makes a study of the present European situation particularly in the Balkans, exciting.

It is claimed, via Latvia, that the soviet government now has a military pact with Italy. Italy is reported to guarantee aid should Turkey attempt to seize trans-Caspian and Caspian districts, including the Baku and Grozny oil fields. Russia in return will grant Italy extensive colonization rights in the Black sea district and also coal concessions in the Don basin.

Possibilities Infinite.
But the agreement may go further. Mussolini with his Fascist dictatorship crumbling around him, is anxious for an opportunity to bring military aggression against a foreign power into play. His dream now is to rule all of the Adriatic area, to make the Adriatic a closed

WAR DECLARED ON HOT CHECK CRAZE

Merchants and Officials to Combat Menace of Worthless Checks

War is declared on the hot check artists of Ada and notice has been given that every resource of Ada merchants and county authorities will be loosed to curb the free handed menace that is threatening the stability of business.

Several leading merchants of Ada are heading the fight to curb the insistent issuance of worthless checks in order that confidence in paper notes may be retained in business transactions.

Local merchants report that the hot check craze has reached a stage where daily returns of worthless checks from local banks are to be expected and a merchant must figure a certain percent of checks taken in during the days business as a complete loss or negotiable only through long drawn out legal channels of prosecution.

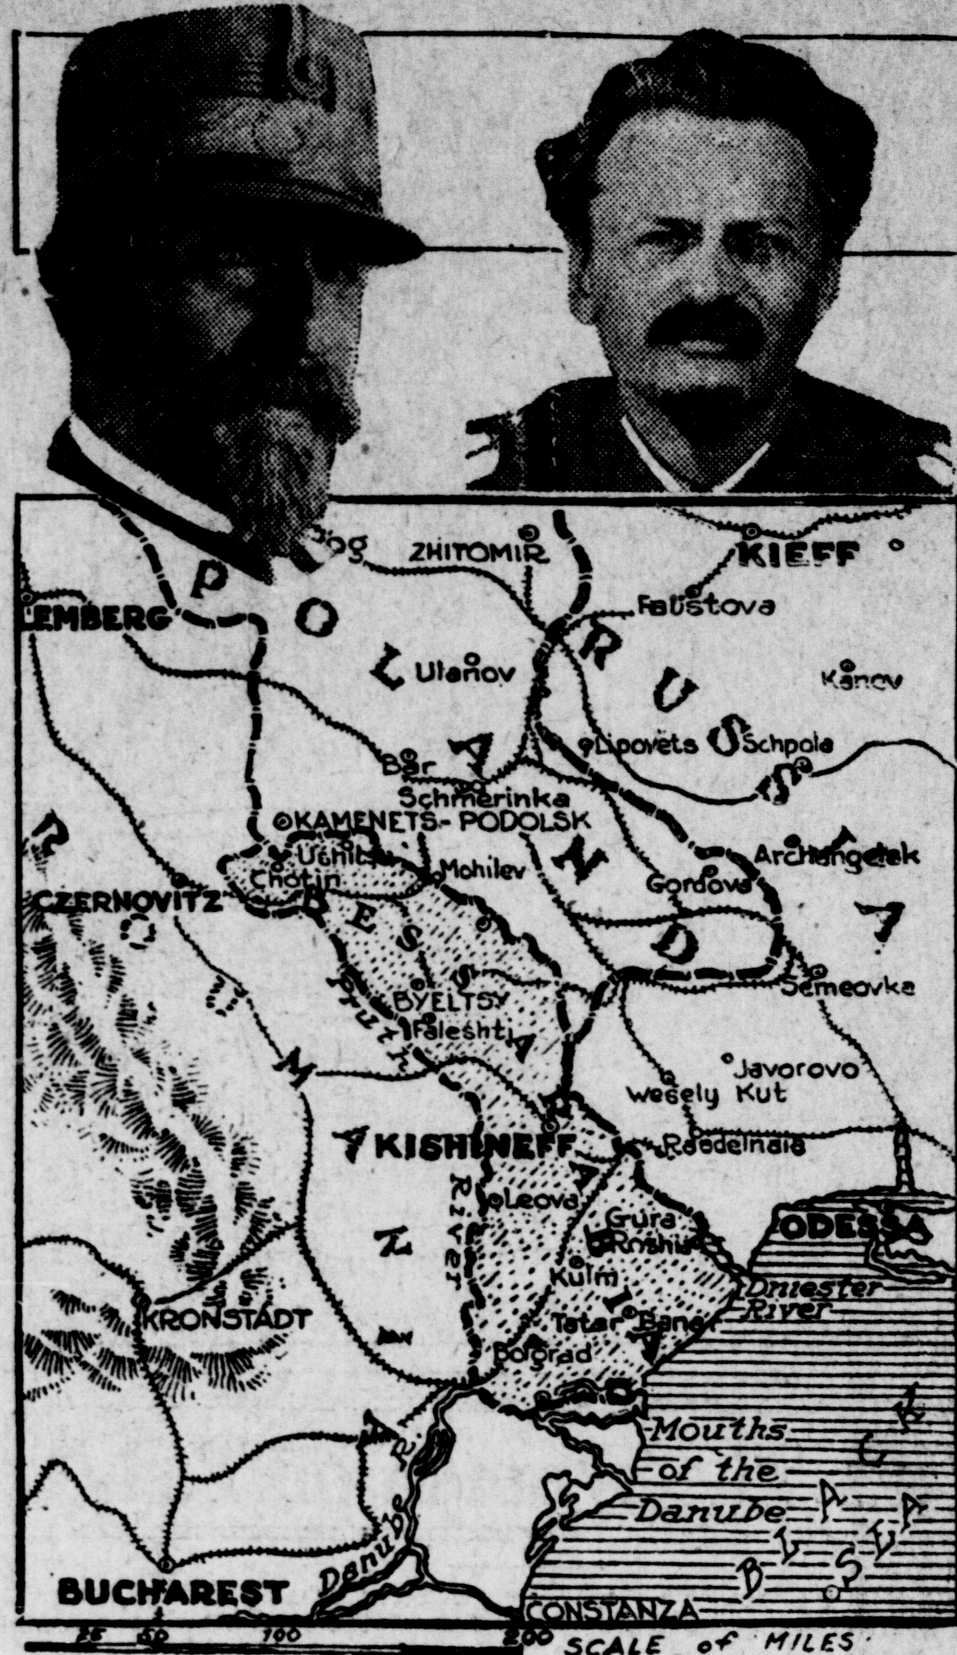

Merchants are fast coming to the stage where drastic action through court looms up to be the only medium to preserve business and to stabilize the check method of payment for merchandise purchases.

Every morning finds justice courts and the county attorney's office the meeting place of irate victims of "insufficient fund" notices on the return checks. Many instances are recorded where check writers never possessed a bank account at the institution to which the check was directed.

Only in cases where the county attorney's office feels that returned checks are resultant of ignorance or not intentional is any effort extended to collect amounts instead of prosecution. In other instances the channels of the law are used in exercise of determination to curb the worthless check menace.

In one justice office, 11 bogus check charges were filed in one month, several others in another and the county attorneys office responsible for numerous cases of prosecution of pen artists.

Map of the Balkan region showing the dispute between Russia and Roumania over Bessarabia.

Now, if Russia and Roumania were to go to the mast over Bessarabia, and Jugoslavia should go to the aid of its partner in the Little Entente, Mussolini would have his chance. His treaty with Russia, if such there is, would give him an excuse to move against Jugoslavia, giving him an opportunity to acquire in war the seaports and territory on the eastern Adriatic shore which he considers so highly necessary as an outlet for Italy's surplus population now that Uncle Sam has put up the bars on immigration.

With Russia and Roumania and Jugoslavia and Italy in an embroilment, there's no means of telling what would happen to Europe.

Investigation of Dance Pavilion Crash is Slated

(By the Associated Press)
BUCKEYE LAKE, O., Aug. 8.—An investigation of the cause of the crash of a dancing pavilion here last night which cost the lives of 6 negroes and injured several others is expected to start immediately.

The crash came when 150 couples were on the floor.

The dancers were attending the annual negro day sponsored by the Elks. Nearly every section of the state was represented. When the floor gave way the dancers fell into the water. Some had to be rescued and the others swam out.

SCHOOL FRIENDS CALLED TO STAND

University School Mates of Confessed Slayers on Witness Stand

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The Franks hearing was becalmed today in the doldrums, the testimony from University of Michigan fraternity brothers of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr., awaiting sentence by Judge John R. Caverly for the kidnapping and murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks.

In rapid succession sleek youths took the witness stand and testified that Loeb at the university was childish and argumentative, read detective and adventure fiction and suffered frequent fainting attacks.

Their evidence intended by the defense to further its plans for mitigating the punishment of Loeb and Leopold followed closely that of four college and fraternity chums who testified yesterday.

Probably the greatest crowd of the 115 days hearing stormed the court room this morning, but from their standpoint the hearing was dull and uninteresting compared to yesterday when pretty Lorraine Nathan, Loeb's former sweetheart, was the witness in the box.

VOTERS SPLIT ON HIGHWAY PROJECTS

Logan County Votes Issue
While Lincoln Fails to Carry

(By the Associated Press)
GUTHRIE, Aug. 8.—Final figures of the Logan county road bond election held Tuesday show that the issuance of $750,000 of highway bonds carried by a majority of 61 1-2 per cent, 1 1-2 per cent more than the legal requirement.

Plans will be made at once to proceed with the project which includes a paved road entirely through the county on the Oklahoma City-Tulsa highway with lateral graveled topped roads through every town in the county.

CHANDLER, Aug. 8.—Defeat of the $900,000 road bond issue voted on in Lincoln county Tuesday was conceded today by supporters of the project although but a small part of the ballots have been canvassed by the board of county commissioners.

Unofficial reports have established that the proposal fared worse than in a previous election about two months ago when the bonds were defeated by a small majority, according to information obtained at the headquarters of the bond campaign. Failure of the bonds prevents construction of a hard surface highway between Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

PETITION FOR RECOUNT IS FILED BY JOE DUPRE

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8.—A petition for a recount of the ballots cast for the Democratic nomination for Oklahoma county judge was filed today with the clerk of the county election board by Joe Dupre who, according to unofficial returns was defeated by C. C. Christian by a margin of 131 votes. The petition alleged mistakes and irregularities in the count.

Pine Asserts He Is Not Candidate Under Klan Cross

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8.—W. B. Pine, Republican nominee for United States senator, in a statement issued here today asserted he would not make his race as a "Klan candidate."

"I have been endorsed by the W. C. T. U. organization and by several Lions' clubs. I understand that certain klans also advocated my candidacy. Yet I am never referred to as the Lions' candidate. I am no more the Klan candidate than I am the W. C. T. U. nominee."

"The people of this state who are for clean government regardless of the party with which they have been affiliated previously are going to give me their vote," Pine asserted.

L'FOLLETTE NOT IN ACCORD WITH KLAN FAVORITISM

Wisconsin Independent Candidate Opposed to Klan
In Campaign

NOT REAL ISSUE

Claims Organization Doomed
To Short Life in National Issues

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, independent candidate for president, in a letter made public today declared he is "unalterably opposed to purposes of the secret organization known as the Ku Klux Klan as disclosed by its public acts."

"It cannot long survive," declared the senator. "Relying upon the sound judgment and good sense of our people it is my opinion that such a movement is foredoomed. It has within its own body the seeds of its death."

The letter, addressed to Robert P. Scripps, newspaper publisher, was given out for publication at Senator LaFollette's office. Declaring it "unfortunate that a question involving religious opinions and other questions unrelated to the vital issues of the restoration of the government to the people have been raised in this as in other critical years of our national history," the letter added:

"Such controversies inflame prejudice and passion to the exclusion of issues involving the very life of the government itself."

Senator LaFollette declared at the outset of his letter that "the one dominating, all embracing issue of this campaign is to break the combined power of the private monopoly system over the political and economic life of the American people."

With reference to the Ku Klux Klan issue the senator said:

"Anyone familiar with my record in my own state knows that I have always stood without reservation against any discrimination between races, classes or creeds. I hold that every citizen is entitled to the full exercise of his constitutional rights."

COTTON CROP FORECAST ISSUED BY GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—A forecast placing cotton production for this year at 12,531,000 equivalent 500-pound bales of which 29,942 running bales counting round as half bales were gained prior to August 1, was announced today in the first joint report of the department of agriculture and the census bureau. The forecast was based on the condition of the crop August 1, which was 67.4 per cent normal, indicating a yield per acre of 146.3 pounds. From the condition of the crop on July 16 which was 68.5 per cent normal, a forecast of 11,934,000 bales was made compared with last year's crop of 10,128,478 bales. Oklahoma condition on August 1 was given as 76 per cent.

Manuel to Aid Walton

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8.—Manuel Herrick, former congressman from the eighth district who was decisively defeated for the Republican nomination in Tuesday's primary by Congressman M. C. Garber, will bolt the Republican ranks and support J. C. Walton in his race for the United States senate, according to a telegram from Herrick received at Walton headquarters.

The telegram congratulated the defeated governor on his presumed nomination and stated that as an anti-klan candidate Herrick would work in Walton's behalf.

NO REPORT SEEN TODAY FOR POLL OF COUNTY VOTE

Official Returns Still In Hands
Of County Election
Board

HOWARD WON'T QUIT

Democratic Leaders Seeking To Hold Party Lines
For Coming Fight

Official returns from Pontotoc county's primary election, which was completed by the voters Tuesday, still remained in the hands of the Pontotoc county election board late this afternoon.

Later announcement from the board indicated that official returns would not be posted until Saturday afternoon owing to the fact that a number of boxes from over the county are still in the hands of the board.

The delay in releasing the official vote of the county is attributed to the thoroughness of the board in sparing no effort in making the report complete and thorough in every detail.

At two o'clock today the board had just completed the tabulation of the Fitzhugh ballot. The precincts are being listed alphabetically, the city of Ada being disposed of first.

Officials of the Allen precinct were called by the board here today to arrange the Allen ballot for counting. No other flaws were reported in connection with the filing of precinct returns with the election board.

While the election board was not in a position to predict the results of the official count as compared with the unofficial returns gathered early Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, it is generally believed that the official returns will not vary materially with the first reports given out.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8.—E. B. Howard will not concede defeat until after the official count and is prepared to demand a recount.

Pressure is being brought to bear on J. C. Walton to swing him behind Bob LaFollette.

Campbell Russell reserved a place on the ballot as an independent in "good faith."

That was the situation in the senatorial race Thursday night.

Walton was leading Howard by 7,661 votes with but 377 precincts unheard from. Those precincts are expected to swell Howard's total rather than to aid Walton in overcoming the former governor's lead. Walton's standing was 75,419 while Howard's was but 67,758 with 2,619 precincts heard from.

Leaders in both the republican and democratic parties were fearful Thursday that party lines would be obliterated in the coming campaign, and that the fight between Walton and W. B. Pine, republican nominee, would degenerate into klan and anti-klan fight. Pine had the klan endorsement in the republican primary and it is believed this will be the issue upon which Walton will attack him.

Would Keep Party Intact

Leaders were reluctant to express opinions as to what effect Russell's entry into the fight would have. Some predicted that much of the Howard klan following would bolt to him, others doubted him being a real factor in the case.

Efforts were being made to keep party lines intact, and Governor Trapp, titular head of the party, led off by declaring that he would support the ticket in November. Many who had opposed Walton in the past were swung into line by party leaders and were ready to "support the ticket." Among these were Tom Anglin, president pro tempore of the senate, and Harry Cordell of Fredrick, a leader of the farm bloc in the state senate.

Pine is expected to dodge the klan issue as much as possible and to make his race on national issues alone. He will arrive in Oklahoma City Friday morning for a conference with party chieftains, and is expected to clearly define his position in the matter at that time.

As the returns slowly came in Fred Capshaw increased his lead in the race for the democratic nomination for corporation commissioner. In 1,717 precincts Capshaw received 40,979 votes while Joe Cobb, Walton appointee to the commission, received but 28,820 and O. A. Brewer, El Reno indorsee, received 22,179. None of the other ten in this race received more than 5,000 votes. R. B. Quinn won the republican nomination for this office, defeating 12 opponents.

May Reach Agreement

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 8.—Such progress as has been made in adjusting the difference between the Germans and the Allies for putting the Dawes reparation plan into effect that there is still hope that the conference may complete its plans within a day or two.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE PEACE OF GOD, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.—Phil. 4-7.

LORTON IS SORE

If a two column editorial in the Tulsa World is an index to the feelings of Eugene Lorton, the owner of that paper and defeated candidate for the Republican nomination for senator, Lorton is not only very, very sore but a poor loser as well. After reviewing the situation and declaring that Senator Harrel and the entire caboodle of the Republican organization are either klansmen or controlled by the klan; that Pine is not a Republican and that he spent more money than was ever before heard of in a campaign, the editorial sums up the situation in the following words:

"Now as to some conclusion: The sovereign voters of the state are confronted with a choice that is perplexing. There are three possible candidates for the senate from which the voters must select:

"Former Governor J. C. Walton, representing much that one would like exceedingly to escape; who has won his vindication in the face of a fight that only a fighting man could win.

"W. B. Pine, who has debauched to the extent of his ability the electorate on the republican side, and viciously betrayed republican principles by becoming a part of the invisible empire.

"And George Wilson, the radical agitator and stormy petrel of class-conscious politics in the state.

"What a pitiful and impossible choice is thus left the voters of Oklahoma! No available sanctuary anywhere, for men and women who desire to vote straight and sound and in accord with their honest convictions."

A WORTHY WORK.

We consider the bill, which was introduced and put through the congress by Tom D. McKeown, providing for the survey of the flood conditions on the North and South Canadian rivers and Little river as one of the best pieces of constructive legislation passed in some time.

The land along these rivers is fertile. Especially the land along Little river and the North Canadian is the land productive and subject to destructive overflows. The McKeown bill looks to the impounding of water in western Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. This would provide water for vast irrigation projects and hold it back from overflowing the land and destroying soil and crops. In the case of Little river, the proper control of the flood conditions would mean thousands of as fertile land as can be found anywhere could be put to use.

The senatorial race is still considerably complicated and will be until the November election. Thousands of Democrats will bolt Walton and with Pine leading the Republican ticket it is certain that many anti-klan Republicans will bolt the ticket in his case. George Wilson is running as the nominee of the Farmer-Labor party. While anti-klan he is also strongly anti-Walton. It is impossible to estimate how much strength he will develop. This will depend to a considerable extent on how much strength the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket develops in Oklahoma. Campbell Russell, anti-Walton Democrat and Klansman is running as an independent. While he will stand little chance of election he will probably get a fair sized vote from Democrats who will not vote for Walton and yet will not vote for a Republican nominee. The situation is without precedent in Oklahoma and the race will be a lively one from now until November.

Gene Lorton of the Tulsa World has probably found that an editor seldom makes a strong candidate. When one announces for office he at once becomes the target of all the enemies he has made in a lifetime who gleefully grab the opportunity to pay off old scores. In Lorton's case he was probably surprised at how carefully some of his enemies had preserved the editorials appearing in the Tulsa World for several years past. These were used with telling effect for some of them, his enemies charged, did not jibe with his declarations during the campaign. J. W. Kayser of Chickasha, candidate for the Republican nomination for corporation, was another newspaper man who got it in the neck, although he was one of the most competent men in the race.

We heard a man wonder why people take such an intense interest in an election when in the final analysis it is only a matter of giving some one a job. However, it is well to remember that these jobs are highly important to the public since the men elected are to handle the business of the public. If only the voters, considered as carefully the qualifications of the candidates as they would those of men they expected to employ in their private business there would be a big improvement in the personnel of public servants and in the services these render.

There is nothing surprising in the fact that the allies and Germany have reached another agreement. They have reached several since the war closed but when it came to carrying them out the Germans have always had another tale to tell.

With The Women of Today

The American Committee for Devasted France was organized in 1917 by a group of women under the leadership of Mrs. A. M. Dike and Miss Ann Morgan, of New York City. Its purpose was to assist in the rehabilitating the war torn regions of France and enable the people to resume the community life they enjoyed before the war.

Mrs. A. Murray Dike has been the commissioner in France of the Committee since its inception. She was the first woman ever to be elected to the French Academic d'Agriculture, in recognition of her work among the farmers of the Aisne, and she and Miss Morgan were recently made officers of the Legion of Honor by the French government.

M. Andre Tardieu, who headed the French commission to the United States during the war, is the honorary president of the committee and Myron T. Herrick, ambassador of the United States to France, is president. Besides cooperating in agricultural work this committee operates libraries, both stationary and traveling, establishes clinics in French villages and school for French nurses in Paris.

Bits About Women

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of the late President
Roosevelt, is writing her memoirs.
Probably no woman in the country has been closer in touch with the political life of the country than Mrs. Longworth. Not only is she the daughter of a former president and wife of a noted congressman,
but she has attended every Democratic and Republican national convention for years and is a frequent visitor to the sessions of the house and senate.

George B. Harris, Cleveland attorney is campaigning for the Republican nomination for governor of Ohio. When he is unable to fill a speaking engagement, recently Mrs. Harris made the address in his stead.

The Finnish schooner, Sampo, has a woman among its crew. It carries lumber between England and Finland.

Women in the Congo, Africa, are waking up and demanding their rights, says Mrs. John M. Springer, a member of the board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church. She states that they are refusing to put up with the marriage custom of being sold to their husbands and are gaining equal property rights.

Miss Eleanor Judd, of South Bend, Ind., a blind girl, who recently won a degree of M. A. at George Washington University is the only blind girl to ever be graduated from that college.

Paris will build its own home.

importation of hair pins, face powder, rouge or lipstick.

tion in New York, Tammany Hall,

Steady Ring Work Helps Gibbons in Making Fortune

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 8.—Pugilistic prestige and big purses are at last coming to Tommy Gibbons, at a time when the St. Paul heavyweight is long past the age when most fighters are in their prime.

Fighting gamely up the long, hard hill to ring fame, Gibbons achieved a formidable summit when he stayed 15 gruelling rounds with Jack Dempsey in Montana a year ago.

That "moral victory," after nearly 17 years of ring experience, opened the way to the largest purses the St. Paul fighter has ever received.

There was no direct remuneration for Gibbons in his fight with Dempsey, but now at the age of 33
he is "cashing in" on the showing he made, and apparently is at the zenith of his ring career.

For his fight with Georges Carpentier at Michigan City, last May,
he received his largest purse, $62,
000. Previously, his top had been $12,500 for a match with Harry Greb. He received $50,000 for his fight with Jack Bloomfield, the English heavyweight, in London.

It has been no cushioned road for Tommy, however, for under the expert eye of his older brother Mike Gibbons, he has followed a rigorous rule of living, full of self-denial.

to his wife and five children, all boys. The youngest are twins, born only a few weeks ago. His oldest boy is eight.

By nature Tommy is modest and very little in the limelight that would gladly welcome him, even in his home town. Back in the days when Brother Mike's ring prowess gained him the name of "Phantom" Tommy saw the opportunities for a much more remunerative occupation than as an employee in the railroad shops here. Then began the long,
slow climb to ring prominence.

"Clean living and right thinking," Tommy once said, "can do more to keep a fellow in condition than the hardest training interrupted by occasional lapses into dissipation."

In recent years Tommy has established an enviable ring record, including a long list of knockouts.
Even after his 15-round contest with Champion Dempsey there still stood his record of never having been knocked down in a ring engagement.
At one time, starting in 1921, he ran his string of consecutive knockouts to 20.

There has been no talk from Tommy of retiring from the ring. He wants another match with Dempsey and expects to keep after it until he lands it. But when retirement comes, unless he suffers unforeseen business reverses before then, Tommy probably will be able to retire to a life of comparative ease for he has made income-yielding investments with his winnings.

His brother Mike also has investments in city and other property which have "fixed him 'or life."
Tommy, however, has turned to stocks and bonds, so that coupon clipping is his principal business occupation outside ring activities.

SUMMER MONTHS LURE SCIENTISTS

Lazy Weather Call Followers of Science Into Far Fields of World.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Summer is the open season for scientists, and several of the most noted members of the Smithsonian institution here are taking advantage of
it. Their expeditions into the field of science cover a variety of subjects and are conducted, for the most part, by men bearing the degree of doctor of philosophy.

Doctor Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the institution, and his wife, have recently left for a tour of geological field work in the Canadian Rocky Mountains. Investigations in to the complicated geological formations of that region and the collection of fossils for laboratory study during the winter are Doctor Walcott's quarry. Mrs. Walcott specializes in sketching in water colors
the species of wild flowers of the northland. This work will extend into the fall.

The measurement of the heat of the spectra of the stars, with an estimation of their temperature and determining their diameter, is the goal of Doctor C. G. Abbot, assistant secretary of the institution. A "solar cooker," which he is trying to perfect, in which the heat of sun is used for fuel in cooking, is part of his equipment. Mount Wilson in California will be the scene of Doctor Abbot's labors. He has paid a visit also to the Smithsonian institution's solar observing station at Mount Harqua Hala, Arizona. This is one of the most cloudless regions in the world, and observations of the radiation from the sun are made there every day in the year.

Doctor Paul Bartsch came back early in July from Cuba and the Florida Keys, where he conducted experiments in heredity with land shells, known as cerion, and observed the effect of various environments on them. He works in co-operation with the Carnegie institute. Doctor Bartsch recently
"shot" 1,200 feet of moving pictures of marine life, with his underwater camera, making an interesting record of fish and coral life.

The mapping of geology of fossils in the Cumberland River area of Tennessee is the special work of Doctor R. S. Bassler, curator of the division of paleontology, this season,
in conjunction with the State Geological Survey of Tennessee. Doctor J. M. Aldrich, curator of the division of insects, is on a trip thru the west, collecting insects. Nell M.
Judd, a Smithsonian man, temporarily director of the National Geographic Society's Pueblo Bonito expedition in New Mexico, is overseeing excavation of one of the largest prehistoric communal Indian dwellings in the United States.

John L. Baer, representing the Smithsonian Institution on the Marsh expedition into the Darien region of Panama of "white Indian"

fame, died in the Isthmus, without making a formal report, before the expedition came back to this country.

Doctor J. Walker Fewkes, chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology, will soon leave for Carlsbad,
N. M. to explore a number of caves.
It is reported that remains of Indian habitation have been found there. Doctor John R. Swanton is in Oklahoma, studying the language of the Chickasaw and Creeks, Indian tribes.

J. N. B. Hewitt, ethnologist, has just returned from New York state and Canada, after studying the language of Iroquois Indians. Dr.
Truman Michelson has recently completed studies at Aama, Iowa,
in the language of the Sauk and Fox Indians.

A number of other members of the scientific staff of the Smithsonian Institution and its branches are out on short trips, engaged in field work in various branches of science.

Berlin Hotel Trade Declines

BERLIN.—The steady decrease in hotel guests during May, June and July this year has alarmed the hotel keepers, who say that the situation is due to the 15 per cent special tax on hotel rooms.
Berlin is the only large German city that still exacts this tax.

In previous years there was a steady increase of hotel guests during May, June and July.

MALARIA LEAVES A HEAVY MARK

Malaria, unfortunately, does not end with the breaking of Chills and reducing of Fever. Even after the patient is free from actual illness, the marks on his system are plain to see. Vitality is weak, appetite poor, weight fallen off, spirits low. In such conditions Wintemith's Chill Tonic, a reliable anti-malaria prescription is invaluable.

Wintemith's Chill Tonic builds up and restores what the malarial fever has taken away. It enriches and purifies the blood, aids the appetite, tones up the system,
hastens the return of health and strength.

Taken as you feel Chills and Fever coming on, Wintemith's Chill Tonic gives prompt and certain relief; and a long siege of Malaria can often be avoided. Its beneficial effects have been proved in thousands of cases, over 50 years of continued use. At

WAS SO NERVOUS SHE CRIED FOR RELIEF

The wonderful reconstructive and health-giving powers of Tanlac are again very forcefully demonstrated.
This time in the case of Mrs. Gertrude Walsh, who operates the Red Ball Hotel, 208 North Alamo St.,
San Antonio, Texas. Mrs. Walsh relates her remarkable experience as follows:

"The way Tanlac built me up six months ago, or more, was truly wonderful, and another good part about it is, my health has been all I could ask for ever since. Before taking this medicine I was actually so nervous that I could not keep the tears back. I was troubled with indigestion so bad that my food felt like a rock in the pit of my stomach,
and I could hardly eat or sleep.

"At times my head would swim and my heart would flutter until I feared I had heart trouble. At this time I was running a restaurant at Kennedy, Texas, and was so run-down, nervous and irritable that it was a dreadful burden for me to wait on my customers.

"I decided to try Tanlac from seeing it displayed in a drug store across the street, and after taking the first two bottles a wonderful change had come over me. My stomach misery was all relieved, my nerves more calm, my appetite improved and I began to take on weight and strength. Seven bottles ran my weight up about 50 pounds, and left me feeling fine. I could not do otherwise than praise Tanlac.

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

Georgia Lady Says She Has Grown Stronger by Taking Cardui—Thoroughly Convinced of its Merits.

Clyattville, Ga.—In a statement which she gave at her home on R. F. D. 1, here, Mrs. T. A. Copeland said: "I have, I believe, avoided a good deal of suffering by the use of Cardui, and am thoroughly convinced that it has been of great benefit to me."

"Before the birth of two of my children, I grew so weak and nervous I could hardly go, and suffered. I had a friend who told me of Cardui, so the next time when I grew so weak and run-down I began to use it. I used it three months. I grew stronger and less nervous. The baby was stronger and a better baby, and I really believe it was because I built up my strength with this splendid tonic."

Cardui has been in successful use for more than forty years. Thousands of women have written to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others. It is a mild, harmless, purely vegetable medicinal preparation—a product of practical experience, scientific investigation and pharmaceutical skill. Sold everywhere. NC-159

Farmers' Column

Byron Norrell

D. S. Chestnut, who lives some four or five miles north of Ada, has been selling a great many tomatoes this season. He says he has a little patch in the creek bottom that has yielded well and that he has found a ready market, having already sold about $30 worth. However, being an honest man like myself in such matters, he admits that the tomato patch is really his wife's.

Agent Hill reports that the broom corn crop is suffering for rain. A fair sized acreage was planted in the county this year and there will be considerable for the market. Mr. Bagley of Burrow, who planted over 200 acres last year, is again going strong and probably has the largest acreage of any man in the county.

J. M. Atkinson, the pickle factory man, reports that in spite of the dry weather, some cucumbers are still coming in. He expects to get about 16 cars this year which will be about four times as many as last year.

W. S. Wood has a patch of four acres of cotton on Judge Barton's place on the north outskirts of the city which he says bloomed just two months after being planted. He planted it May 13 and on July 13 found the first blooms. He says it is loaded with bolls and will yield a fine crop whether it rains any more or not.

Agent Hill made a trip to the south part of the county Thursday and reports that around Roff and Laxton he found that a good rain had fallen Wednesday. He did not know how far it reached.

Pecan Grove Club Meets. Mrs. J. L. Boring was hostess to the Pecan Grove canning club Thursday afternoon at her home south of Ada when the hours were spent in planning for the county fair exhibits and the course of work for the coming year.

During the story telling hour Mrs. Nellie Dew gave, without notes, the "Life of Christ" as recorded by St. Luke, in a very comprehensive manner showing a careful study of her subject. Mrs. Byron Norrell gave a talk on "Music in the Bible."

Plans for obtaining the use of the circulating library provided by the state was discussed by Mrs. Duvall. Steps will be made to take advantage of the free library during the winter months.

Mrs. Boring served a delicious ice course with cake for refreshments.

CHURCH NOTES

First Baptist Church. All regular services will be held at the First Baptist church next Sunday as usual. Sunday school will begin at 9:45. The Men's Bible Class will meet at the McSwain Theatre at that hour. The other classes will meet at the church. The pastor will preach Sunday morning at eleven o'clock on the subject, "A Farmer who Saved a Nation." At the evening hour the subject will be "Are we living in the last days?"

No. 1

One merchant declared that he would prosecute every hot check writer leaving a worthless scrap of paper in his possession. He stated that several writers had attempted to repay the amount of the check forged but that he was determined to see prosecution in every instance. The merchant stated that careless and willful defrauders must be taught to respect business courtesy and that the only method of bringing this about is through prosecution. Considerable complaint is being waged against young boys who issue small checks without any funds to cover the amounts. Prosecution will also be pushed in these instances in order that youngsters may be taught the first principles of honesty and fair dealing.

BROWN, ANDERSON, ADAIR AND HARRINGTON WINNERS

The tabulation of the figures in the races for justice of the peace for Ada made by the county election board shows that H. J. Brown, and Joseph Anderson, present justices, were nominated and that W. B. Adair and Joe Harrington were nominated for constable.

For justice of the peace Fisher received 892, Brown 1018, and Anderson 959, and Neal 338.

For constable Miller received 517, Uetshy 460, Adair 709, Corbin 517, Hacker 143 and Harrington 810.

OBITUARY

Billy Tiger. Billy, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tiger, who live five miles east of Ada, died this morning at 7 o'clock. Funeral services were held this afternoon and the body laid to rest in the Mayer cemetery.

Three in Police Court. The election period calm in the law enforcement departments continued to show up in the reports of the officials today. The city officers manager to bring in three offenders last night, two charged with drunkenness and another for disturbing the peace. The county office registered a blank.

Only intimate friends of the bride were present.

Annual Fair to Be Held Uptown This Year—Hill

Secretary J. B. Hill of the County Fair association states that the fair will be held in the business part of Ada this year instead of at the fair grounds.

He states that at a recent meeting of the board the Norris building on the corner of East Main and Rennie has been donated for the exhibits, if the building is still vacant at that time, and the wagon yards on East Main and north of the bottling works have been donated for the livestock exhibits.

This arrangement, it is thought, will make everything much more convenient for all concerned.

Mr. Hill says that considerable interest is being manifested by prospective exhibitors over the county and he considers the prospect for a first class fair most excellent.

Word of Appreciation.

I desire to express to the voters of Commissioner's District No. 1 my appreciation for the vote of confidence given me in Tuesday's primary election. I shall do everything in my power to merit the confidence and give, as I have given in the past, the best in me to the work.

H. CLAY STEPHENS.

SOAKING RAIN REPORTED FROM CARTER COUNTY

ARDMORE—With 1.20 inch of rain over this section of the state Wednesday afternoon, farmers forgot all about warring politicians and speculated how much it would add to their bank accounts this fall.

The season has been ideal in this locality. The rain yesterday will be of great benefit to all growing feed crops, will help cotton, and add generally to the prosperity of the people.

The original estimates made by local cotton men that 20,000 bales would be harvested in this county seems to have been conservative, and some local observers are now inclined to believe that the total will exceed that amount.

Wednesday the mercury reached 106 degrees with a minimum last night of 74-degrees, according to a report given by R. G. Shaw, local forecaster.

TIME ADVANCED FOR GAME WITH BEGGS HERE SUNDAY

The Sunday baseball conflict will be advanced from the regular hour of 3:30 o'clock to 3 o'clock in order that the Beggs team, opponents for the game, may return on an early train and avoid staying over night. Green announced that the change in time would prove no inconvenience to the players or fans.

It is not likely that the oil will be shipped after the Oklahoma Pipe Line Company taps this county. It will be a few weeks yet, however, before the pipe line is in.

SHAWNEE VOTES TO OPEN MOVIE SHOWS ON SUNDAY

SHAWNEE.—A city ordinance which provides for the opening of moving picture shows on Sunday was passed yesterday in the primary elections with a majority of 292 votes on complete returns from the city's 13 voting boxes. The vote stood: For the amendment 1936, and against the amendment 1644.

The campaign has perhaps attracted more attention than any other question presented to the voters with the possible exception of the race for the United States Senate. The question of an open or closed movie on Sunday is one that has been voted on several times in Shawnee. A move to open the shows was defeated on a previous occasion.

BONDSMEN SETTLE FOR CONVICTED BANKER

OKMULGEE.—The fine of $4,000 and costs amounting to $528.23 which J. Ray Brown, president of the defunct Bank of Commerce was sentenced to pay by the district court following his conviction here six months ago for an indictment charging his with "accepting deposits in an insolvent bank" was paid today by George Simons of this city and W. H. Reading of Beggs, his bondsmen.

An attachment for Brown, who now resides in Tulsa, was issued today by the district court and preparations made by the sheriff's office here to take him into custody.

His bondsmen, however, appeared immediately after they had been notified and paid the fine and costs to the court clerk, ending the case.

Discoveries Can Be Made at Home

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD
(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

DORIS HAMILTON watched Jack depart for the city and stood looking after him from the door of their pretty house. The discovery that she had made by accident had profoundly altered the course of her life. Jack had stayed in town once in a while till late, alleging that he had a rush of work. It was quite by chance Doris had discovered that he was taking his stenographer out to dinner.

They had been married only three years, and, while not desperately in love with each other, they thought themselves a very happy couple. And now the other woman, that bugbear of every wife, had appeared on the scene. Everything seemed at an end for Doris. Why couldn't they have run together in the same humdrum way as the Ellersbys, for instance.

The Ellersbys were their best friends. They lived across the street. They had been married nine years and were devoted.

And there was Maud Ellersby coming across road.

"Oh, Doris, dear, I was wondering if you and Jack couldn't come over and play bridge with us on Saturday," she said.

"If Jack's home," answered Doris in a shaky voice. And then she found herself sobbing helplessly.

"Why, my dear, what is the matter?"

"Oh, nothing—oh, Maud, Jack's untrue to me and—"

"What nonsense, child! Why, your husband is devoted to you! I only wish Harry thought as much of me as yours does of you."

"No, that's only his h-h-hypocritical way, Maud," sobbed Doris. "I found out that he's been taking his stenographer out to dinner when he's been pretending he had to stay late at the office."

"Well, but, child, your husband's got to have dinner, hasn't he?" asked Maud Ellersby practically. "And she's got to eat, too."

"Oh, that sounds all very well, but you're only saying it to comfort me," sobbed Doris.

Maud took her by the arm. "Now I'll tell you something, dear," she said. "Harry must have taken a whole regiment of women out to dinner since we've been married—and I didn't care."

"You don't care? Why I thought you loved each other—"

"We do, Doris. And that's why. Don't you see, the best man on earth must get tired of death of always sitting down to dinner at the same table and looking at the same woman. And if a little innocent diversion makes him feel better and come home happier—"

"Oh, but I know he's in love with her!" sobbed Doris.

"Not a bit of it, dear," replied Maud stoutly. "A wife is always winner in the end, if she handles her man properly. Give him all the string he wants, only—"

"Only what? Only what?"

"Don't let the knot slip through your fingers," answered Maud, laughing. "And dry your eyes, my child and don't let him suspect you care or know. That's fatal."

Doris obeyed, but she was dubious in her heart. It seemed the most terrible thing in the world to her. And it was the hardest thing in the world not to let Jack see that she knew. Nevertheless she did manage to preserve an ordinary attitude toward him when he appeared that night.

Though, when he took her in his arms and kissed her, it was the hardest thing not to burst into tears upon his shoulder.

"Well, dearest, business is booming this year," Jack confided in her. "I think I shall be able to increase that allowance of yours in a little while. I wish my stenographer was not going to leave me, though."

"What, that Miss Bates?" gasped Doris.

"Why, you speak as if you didn't like her, child!"

"How can I like or dislike her when I don't know her?" gulped Doris.

"Well, anyway, she's leaving me. Going to be married to a man she's been engaged to for years. He's just come back from the West. I hate to have her go, but I suppose I'll find another one as good. One gets sort of attached to an employee," mused Jack, cracking a walnut.

And Doris mused: "What was that Maud said? Oh, yes, to keep hold of the knot at the end."

"I hope you'll find a good one," she told her husband happily.

Polite Motorist

One of the judges of the municipal court announces that he will insist at times upon politeness from motorists, the Detroit News states. For instance:

"I called at your home because a bystander got your number while you were telescoping the rear bumper of my car and taking off a fender in parking behind me. I simply wanted you to know, my friend, that I am appreciative that accidents like this are bound to happen and that I regard it as in no way your fault. I admit that I was occupying about twice as much parking space as I needed and that, perhaps, I am indebted to you for some damage that may have resulted to your own car. We certainly are having delightful weather for this season of the year, aren't we?"

Myrtle clapped her hands. "Wait one moment," she begged. "I must go and get some different gloves. I'll catch you up before you get to the corner of the street."

The two young men strolled slowly on. There was a serious expression on Christopher's face.

"And you are taking Myrtle to Nice—Mademoiselle de Poniere having left," Christopher continued thoughtfully.

Gerald frowned. "That was rather my idea," he admitted.

"That Was Rather My Idea," He Admitted. "Have You Anything Against It?"

Christopher passed his hand through his friend's arm. They had reached the end of the street and turned slowly back again.

"Look here, old fellow, don't be shy," he begged. "You know I'm right. We can only look after this girl decently in one way, and that is by finding her some sort of a situation not too far removed from the way she has been brought up, in which she can earn an honest living. I'm on my way to secure this for her, but if you go turning her head by taking her about to these smart restaurants, and developing her taste for the gaieties of life, you'll only unsettle her terribly and spoil her chances of contentment."

"You've taken her out yourself once or twice," Gerald reminded him. "I never take her to the very fashionable places," Christopher insisted earnestly, "and I try all the time to impress upon her the necessity of work and the fact that life out here is merely a holiday existence. Take her to Nice, by all means, if you want to, Gerald, but don't turn her head."

Myrtle came down the street toward them. Gerald's face cleared—as he watched her, it was lit with a wave of admiration.

"She is like a piece of floating sunshine," he declared enthusiastically. "Chris, I'm not at all sure that she ought to be a nursery governess. She's going to be beautiful enough to turn the heads of half the men in Europe."

"It will be very largely our responsibility," Christopher said, lowering his voice a little as Myrtle drew near. "Whether that beauty is going to be a curse or a happiness to her. Don't you forget that, Gerald."

Chapter XI

Gerald was absolutely amazed as he led Myrtle back to their seat in the palm court of the hotel. They had lunched, wandered about the town, and afterward made their way back to the hotel lounge, where a tea daint was in progress.

"Why, where on earth did you learn to dance like that, Myrtle?" he demanded.

She laughed softly. "Learn?" she exclaimed. "Why, there has never been any one to teach me. I have never had a lesson in my life. I just listened to the music and watched the people, and then I saw that it was quite easy. Oh, how I love it!"

"What a pity I can't have you to my supper party tonight!" Gerald sighed. She leaned toward him. Her cheeks were pink, her eyes aglow.

"Mayn't I come, please, Gerald?" she begged. "I should be so happy."

Gerald looked doubtful. "There would be the devil to pay with Christopher," he pointed out. "And, besides, it really isn't the place for you."

"What do you mean?" she persisted. "Well, it's a bohemian sort of affair," Gerald explained, a little awkwardly. "The girls aren't all of them just what they should be."

Myrtle laughed again. "But what does that matter?" she protested. "They will not hurt me or I them. When I am not dancing with you, I can sit alone and talk to no one."

Gerald shook his head. "Can't be done, little girl," he decided, regretfully. "Christopher is quite right when he says I ought not to encourage the taste for that sort of life in you at all. These girls all drink a lot of champagne, and smoke furiously—lead rotten lives, most of them—and their conversation sometimes—well, it wouldn't be fit for you to listen to. Some evening or other I'll have quite a small party—just one or two who I know are all right."

"That isn't what I want," Myrtle declared. "I want to go to the party tonight. You will dance with other girls if I am not there. I don't want you to—today, at any rate. You have danced with me, and it was wonderful."

"I begin to think that I don't want to dance with any one else myself," Gerald confessed, looking at her admiringly. "I'll think it over on the way back."

They made their way out to the open space in front of the hotel, where Gerald had left the car, and very soon they were on their way homeward. Driving for the first half-hour, absorbed Gerald's whole attention, and Myrtle leaned back in the low seat by his side, filled with the joy of their rapid ascent, the smooth, birdlike motion which seemed to be taking them, with scarcely an effort, up into the clouds.

"I think," Myrtle whispered, "that this is the real road which leads to happiness. The road down there is tangled and twisted. Here one seems to breathe more wonderfully, to come nearer to things one feels but does not understand. It is more like the air around the farm, when I used to get up sometimes before the sunrise and walk through the violet patch and the cypresses to the gate. The sun rose at the end of the road."

"You are a quaint child, Myrtle," Gerald reflected. "I wonder what would have happened to you if we had not passed along that night."

She shivered. "I know," she answered. "I am quite sure that I know. I felt it in my heart when I leaned over the gate and looked to the end of the road. There was the mystery there towards which I seemed always to have groped. That night it was the mystery of life or the mystery of death. You came, and it was life."

They were traveling more slowly now, crawling along the level stretch of ledge-like road at its extreme summit. Gerald had never before felt the fascination of the girl by his side as he felt it in those moments. He stretched out his left hand and she gripped it in hers, tearing off her gloves so that her fingers could clasp his.

"And since it is life," he asked, "is the mystery passing?" Her eyes were swimming with the desire of happiness.

"There is no mystery any longer," she told him. "I know what lies at the end of the road, where the sun used to rise. I know now."

Gerald, impressionable as ever, felt the spurious glow of exaltation, spurious because its influence was wholly external. His face became graver, his tone was almost stern.

"What we hope you will find there," he said, "is happiness. Christopher has explained to you about this post in England?"

"Yes," she answered. "You will like it?"

"No."

"But you must be happy, Myrtle. We want you to be happy," Gerald declared.

"If you want me to be happy," she whispered, "I shall always be happy because it is you—you."

Gerald, a moment ago, had been full of good intentions, of good advice. Myrtle leaned toward him. Her lips were sweet but throbbing with eagerness, prayed for his embrace. Her left arm stole out toward his shoulder, as though to turn his head.

through the establishment of a summer camp for training scoutmasters on Mount Carmel. This year two camps will be opened through the generosity of Mrs. Nathan Straus of New York, and Young Judea, an organization of young Zionist boys and girls of America.

"Gerald!" she whispered. "Myrtle!" he begged, "you must not."

Then all Gerald's good resolutions crumbled for the moment. Her lips were pressed to his, warm and sweet, passionate with the fervor which comes from the soul alone, which takes no account of lesser things than the heaven where, to the innocent, love only dwells. She rested in his arms, tumultuously happy. Somewhere in the field below was a bonfire of fallen pine boughs, and for years afterward the smell of burning wood, fragrant and aromatic, brought back to Gerald the memory of those few seconds. There was a flash of light below from an approaching automobile. Gerald drew away, pale and a little remorseful. Myrtle's face was like the face of a child who has seen Heaven.

"We must get on," he said hoarsely. She lay back in her place without moving until they began the last descent into the town.

"May I come to your party, tonight, Gerald—now?" she whispered.

"No!"

She laughed quietly to herself. There was no longer any shadow of disappointment in her face.

"But you are very foolish," she remonstrated. "How can you think that it would not be well for me to be where you are? Besides, I want you to dance with me. There are very beautiful young ladies who come to your parties—Christopher showed me some of them at the opera."

"There is not one of them so beautiful as you," he declared.

She smiled happily. "Will you think so tonight?" she asked.

"I shall think so all the time—and I shall miss you terribly," he assured her.

"Perhaps you will, perhaps you will not," she replied enigmatically. "You must put me down here. This is my corner."

She jumped lightly down, with only a touch of his fingers for farewell. Gerald, although he had set a stern face against the rush of ideas and anticipations which were crowding into his brain, felt a little pang of disappointment as she left him without further protest. He would never have allowed her to come, he told himself, as he drove slowly off. Yet at that moment he had a vision. He escaped a taxicab by a few inches.

Myrtle waited until Gerald was out of sight. Then she crossed the square, walked a few steps along the Rue de Paris, paused before the curtained door of Madame Lenore's little establishment, and pushed it open. Madame Lenore herself came forward. There was something sinister, though not unfriendly, in the smile with which she greeted her visitor.

"What can I do for mademoiselle?" she inquired.

"Can I have the clothes for the evening which you showed me when I first came here?" Myrtle asked, a little anxiously.

"But certainly, mademoiselle," the Frenchwoman answered graciously. "Mademoiselle desires them, for this evening?"

"I want to wear them tonight," was the happy reply.

"There are some other things mademoiselle will require," Madame said, thoughtfully. "and it will be necessary for mademoiselle to have the coiffeur. Mademoiselle will place herself in my hands for the evening? I will promise that there is not a girl in Monte Carlo who will be half so beautiful."

"I want to look as nice as it is possible for me to look," Myrtle confided. "I will do just as you say, Madame."

"Is it a party which mademoiselle desires to attend?"

"A supper party," Myrtle replied. "It is at half-past eleven."

"At the Hotel de Paris?"

"Yes!"

Madame glanced at the clock. "If mademoiselle will return at eight o'clock," she said, "I will have a coat-fur here and give him instructions myself. Afterward, we will dress here. I live here—my assistant and I—on the floor above. It will not inconvenience us."

"I shall be quite punctual," Myrtle promised. "You are very kind, Madame."

The unwilling admiration she once more in Madame's beady eyes as Myrtle turned and walked lightly away.

"It is a pity," she sighed, "that the girl is such a fool!"

Chapter XII

Once more Christopher and Lady Mary braved the night air on the terrace of the Villa Agnès. The latter pointed across the gorge to the villa on the other side, a shadowy-looking building, unit and without any sign of habitation.

"I wonder what Gerald does without his little playfellow in the afternoons?" she observed.

Christopher frowned. "I know what he did this afternoon. He took Myrtle over to Nice."

"Myrtle?" Lady Mary repeated coldly. "Your little protégée?"

"Yes," Christopher assented. "You young men will end by getting into trouble with the police or your own consciences."

"I am not in the least afraid of either contingency," Christopher assured her. "Then why do you look so disturbed every time the girl's name is mentioned?" Lady Mary asked him, pointedly.

"If I do," Christopher said, "as I tried to explain to you before, it is not on any own account."

Lady Mary laughed. "You can't imagine that Gerald is likely to find her dangerous!" she scoffed. "Why, he was head over ears in love with that strange girl over at the Violette yesterday, and, besides, Gerald isn't vicious—you know that."

"Gerald is very weak sometimes," Christopher said bluntly. "He has been terribly spoiled, of course, and in this particular instance the trouble is that the child fancies herself in love with him."

"In love with Gerald! How ridiculous!"

"You don't quite appreciate her, if you don't mind my saying so," Christopher declared, a little timidly. "She is extraordinarily innocent. All her life she has been starved for kindness and beauty. I don't think there was ever a human being in the world who needed help and counsel more than she does today."

"Shall I remove her from temptation?" Mary inquired, after a moment's reflection. "My maid has just broken it to me that she is going to stay here and get married. Shall I take your protégée back to England in her place?"

"It only you would!" Christopher exclaimed eagerly. "You needn't keep her. My cousin is going to find a place for her as nursery governess, but she isn't quite ready yet."

Lady Mary considered the matter, leaning over the balcony, her head a little thrown back as though to enjoy the perfume of the pines. Her thoughts wandered for a moment from the subject of discussion.

"I wonder whether I am glad to go home," she mused.

"We shall miss you," Christopher declared.

She turned her head and looked at him.

"Will you?"

"Immensely," he assured her. "I shall miss you more than anything. To tell you the truth," he went on, "except for the tennis and the rather amazing golf, I don't think Monte Carlo appeals to me very much."

"You are no gambler," she observed.

"I haven't the faintest inclination towards it," he confessed. "I hate the things in life which I cannot control."

"Isn't that a little rash?" she ventured. "You might have to hate your own affections."

PSYCHOLOGY NOW SCIENCE ASSET

Harvard Expert Tells of Valuable Work of Aerial Photography.

(By the Associated Press)

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 8.—Psychology is rapidly becoming recognized both as an important science and a dominant factor in all phases of modern life, according to William McDougall, professor of psychology at Harvard University, who delivered an address as the president of the special section in psychology at the British Association for the Advancement of Science today.

"Although progress in Great Britain has been slow," he said, "in Canada and America many opportunities are offered both for teachers and research workers."

"The greatest need at the present time is the courage to take a wider view of the meaning of science. If the psychologist finds that character, will, desire, purpose and the like are quantities which can be studied, he must make his science conform to these facts and not abandon them because they are not recognized in physics or chemistry."

Prof. McDougall appealed for fuller recognition of "purposive striving," not only because without it, the problem of personal development, social life, and industrial organization, can never be given a distinct or adequate explanation.

"The life of man," the speaker said, "from birth to death is one long series of purposive strivings. Some times, as when he plans his career and sets out to build up a home and a family, his goal is remote and somewhat vague, defined in his mind in general terms only. Some times it is precisely and exactly defined, as when he goes to eat his favorite dinner at his favorite table in the club."

"Yet this striving is always one aspect of his waking life. And even in his dreams, the striving goes on, bringing what strange and partial satisfactions it may, to the buried thwarted and denied tendencies of his nature."

"It may be that eventually men of science will agree that there are in the universe two ultimately different kinds of process, the mechanistic and the purposive, the strictly determined and the creative, the physical and the mental."

"But," Professor McDougall concluded, "if I attempt to guess at the future development of science, I incline to follow the lead of the most powerful intellect of all ages and to predict that, if a resolution of the two types of process into one shall ever be achieved, the purposive type, which we regard as the expression of Mind, will be found to be more real than the other."

German Profiteers' Automobiles Now Serve as Berlin Taxicabs

BERLIN.—The placing of a heavy luxury tax upon automobiles and the ending of inflation profits with the new currency have combined to give Berlin some of the most elegant and luxurious taxicabs in Europe. These were formerly the private cars of war and inflation profiteers, who were obliged to get rid of them for a mere pittance when the government acted.

The original owners paid high prices for them and entered them as business charges to reduce the amount of their income taxes.

STATE EXISTENCE REST ON SCIENCE

Obligation of State to Assist Chemistry Set Out by Speaker.

(By the Associated Press)

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 8.—That the whole existence of the state might depend on the maintenance of a flourishing and efficient chemical industry was the statement of Sir Robert Robertson in his presidential address to the chemistry section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science today.

Sir Robert, who is an authority on the chemistry of explosives described the more or less direct assistance given by chemistry to the various governmental departments in Great Britain as they came into being. "Only in recent years," he said, and as a result of the war, has there been a direct recognition of a corresponding obligation on the part of the state to assist chemistry."

The interests of the state which are most intimately bound up with chemistry were listed by Sir Robert as defence, in which are included explosives and chemical warfare, metallurgy, revenue, health and agriculture.

Sir Robert described how British chemists, during the war, succeeded in producing gas masks second to none in protective efficiency. Enormous quantities of phosgene, mustard gas and other substances used in gas warfare were manufactured in the face of great difficulties. Some of these compounds are now finding a use as fungicides and insecticides.

Referring to chemistry and the health department, the speaker said that foods, drinks, drugs, air and water constitute the subdivisions in which the services of the chemist are essential. "There is nothing in Great Britain," said Sir Robert, "corresponding to the series of food definitions and standards which exist in some of the dominions, and especially in the United States. Standards, however, have been fixed for milk, water in butter and margarine, butter fat in margarine, and a few other products. The state is also active in matters pertaining to the contamination of the atmosphere and rivers, and on this account, smokeless fuel is now being given much attention."

"The war brought about the recognition by the state that it is under an obligation to assist science," Sir Robert said in conclusion, "and in 1915, the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research was founded in England. Its principal aim has been to assist firms in an industry to co-operate in employing a staff of scientific men to solve their problems and to assist other government departments, to organize applied research and to foster pure research. As a result, research associations have been organized for textiles, rubber, leather, shale oil, flour, sugar, non-ferrous metals, cast iron, glass, Portland cement, scientific instruments and photographic materials, and in all of these, chemistry plays an important part."

PRAGUE.—A touching collection of human interest material has just emerged from a school in which 500 children of Russian emigres receive their daily instruction. All of them were asked to write down their experiences from 1917 to the time of their entering the school, and were given two hours to complete the task.

Here is one of the productions: "From Persia we went to Archangel, from there to Norway and London."

"After Egypt I lived in Paris, Stockholm and Warsaw. I tried to get to Brazil. With papa we went to Java. We kept changing places for six years."

The following sounds like a novelty: "We travelled about for a long time and lived poorly. In one city our little dog licked the boots of a beggar. We walked home and the beggar followed us. Suddenly mother faint. The beggar took off his beard—it was our long-lost papa."

What happened to one boy during the revolution is described as follows:

"Both my brothers were killed. My father, likewise, was killed and my mother was allowed to starve. Mother returned from the hospital and said, 'You are orphans now, your mother died.' Out on the street I saw a list of those shot; papa was among them. Our uncle was summoned and later we found him in a big ditch where there were others also. When father was shot I understood what revolution is. There were seven of us, and I alone have survived. For half a year I lived on roots and nettles. At the age of 11 I saw how people were shot, hanged, drowned and even broken on the wheel."

The shortest description was furnished by a 12-year-old girl: "I saw war, pestilence, and hunger."

The collection of essays is to be brought out in book form.

Tail Tells Cow's Milk Value.

PARIS.—French veterinarians insist that a cow's tail can determine her milk output and also her milk value. The quantity and value are indicated, say the veterinarians, by the smoothness and slenderness of the tail from a sort of break in the bony structure to the end of her fly-whisker.

Lightning Hits Shed of ZR 3 In Germany; Ship Not Damaged

(By the Associated Press)

Friedrichshaven.—The ZR 3 nearing completion here for its transatlantic flight to Lakehurst, N. J., had its first shock from the elements recently, and came through undamaged. During a thunder storm the huge Zeppelin shed in which the giant dirigible is awaiting installation of her five motors was struck by a bolt of lightning which shook the entire building from end to end and all its contents. There was but little damage to the building itself, and none whatever to the frame work or the gas bag of the ZR 3.

Thunder storms have been particularly frequent and severe this summer in Southern Baden and Switzerland. American army and naval officers, assigned here to watch the progress of the dirigible, say the lightning often has been so spectacular as to remind them somewhat of home.

Conferences and Dinners Make Record for Talking in London

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—London was recently not only the Mecca of overseas visitors, but also the Mecca of debaters or the City of Talk. Conferences, debates, dinners and speech making are prolific. In one day the following conferences, averaging six hours each, were in session: World Power Conference, Congress of Chambers of Commerce, British Homeopathic Congress, and Infant Welfare Conference.

There were seven banquets with at least one hour of speech-making at each, three political meetings, of two hours each, three public lectures and several smaller semi-private conferences.

A conservative estimate places the hours of talking at these functions at 66 hours, during which close to half a million words were uttered.

Berlin has been thrown into a panic by the strike of 8,000 brewery workers.

Printer's Patent in 1791 Brought to Light Recently

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A copy of a patent on making punches and matrices in the manufacture of printing types, granted to Francis Bailey of Philadelphia, a printer in January 1791, has been brought to light by the patent office. This was the fourth patent issued by Uncle Sam and bears the signature of President George Washington. Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson signed the document the second time, when he certified its delivery to the printer. The great seal of the nation is set on it.

In those days patents were granted by the president, countersigned by the secretary of state and attorney general, and personally delivered to the applicant by the secretary of state. The Bailey patent is the only authentic facsimile copy of which there is record in the republic's early days.

Written in long hand in the old English of that period at Philadelphia, then the American capital, the document reads as follows:

RUNOFF CAMPAIGN OPENS IN TEXAS

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Aug. 6.—Judge Felix D. Robertson, the high man in the democratic primary for the gubernatorial nomination of Texas, opened the second half of his campaign here Tuesday night. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, who enters the runoff primary with Judge Robertson, will open her campaign in Dallas Wednesday night, it was said.

Judge Robertson said in part: "I am coming to the people of Texas as the leading candidate for governor, reiterating my well-known platform of common sense, common honesty and Christianity in government."

"I am a tolerant man, respectful of the opinions of all who differ with me, recognizing the right of each individual to form his own conclusions and vote as his conscience dictates. I believe I am so constituted that if elected governor of Texas, I can in a fair, manly straightforward way, draw the combined factions into one harmonious whole and work with them for the upbuilding of Texas institutions."

"The issue of prohibition has become today a commanding lead in this runoff primary because of the fact that all forces of evil backed up solidly by the old whisky ring and its adherents are abroad in the land, fighting tooth and nail to defeat me in order that they may bring comfort and cheer back into the minds and hearts of men who always have stood as uncompromising foes of temperance, sobriety and prohibition."

"The daily papers carry in no uncertain terms their ring of hate against me. With all the adroitness of which they are capable, they are seeking to lead the minds of the people away from this burning question by bringing up issues and fallacies which have no place in this campaign."

Australia Increases Navy.

(By the Associated Press)

MELBOURNE—Of the two cruisers provided for in the government's defense program, one is to be built in Australia at an approximate cost of $9,500,000. The other, built in England, cost about the same. The program probably will include two submarines at a cost of $1,150,000 each.

FISHERIES OF CANADA SHOW BIG INCREASES

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 8.—Increase in the value of the British Columbia fisheries is shown in the returns for 1923 issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The value of all fish marketed last year, fresh and canned, was $20,808,726, a gain of 10 percent over the 1922 value and 49 percent higher than 1921.

The principal increase was in halibut, which was valued at $6,271,993. The salmon pack reached a value of $9,233,148 and the total salmon catch, fresh and canned, was worth $11,936,668 according to the report.

The number of whales caught in 1923 was 445, compared with 187 in 1922. The value increased from $158,814 to $332,781. In 1923, 706,514 gallons of whale oil were obtained.

Capital invested in the fishing industry in 1923 totaled $5,754,272. One hundred and twenty-eight plants were in operation, comprising 60 salmon canneries, 55 fish curing establishments, four clam canneries and eight whale oil and fish oil factories. Men employed in the industry numbered 8,669.

MUTT AND JEFF—The Tourists Dwell On the Wonders of the Great, Expansive West.

CONGRESSMAN FACING
PEN IS NOMINATED

PIKESVILLE, Ky.—While awaiting action on an appeal from his conviction in the federal court for conspiring to violate the Volstead act Congressman John W. Langley conducted a campaign for reelection in his district and was renominated on the Republican ticket in Saturday's primary. He defeated his opponent, Scott Duff, nearly 3 to 1.

In the Democratic senatorial contest Senator A. O. Stanley, fighting opposition of the anti-Saloon League and other "dry" organizations who attacked his record on liquor legislation, won the nomination for reelection from John Junior Howe.

The Republicans nominated Fred M. Sackett, of Louisville, for senator.

Society to Provide Trip Funds
for German Worker's Families

BERLIN.—In order that travel during vacation time may be made possible for workers' families, there has been organized the "Volksreisebund," of People's Traveling Society. The members are expected to pay a membership fee of 50 pfennigs a month and in addition a monthly payment of one and one-half, three and one-half or five and one-half marks, according to the group they join.

Tours will be arranged for the different groups and the money saved annually will pay all expenses.

Increased service for disabled veterans and strengthening of the National defense proved to be the major activities as approved by strong resolutions adopted by the fifth annual convention of the American Legion at Ada, July 28-29.

All previous convention attendance records were broken by the veterans reunion at Ada, approximately 2500 war comrades being in attendance at the meetings. Pawhuska was selected as the host for the 1925 gathering.

A district veterans bureau in Oklahoma City was requested by the veterans. Liberal expansion of the work of the Central State Hospital at Norman where the nervous and shell-shocked patients are treated was strongly recommended. A second ward which will house 90 men, together with a recreation building and a vocational building for the Norman hospital will be sought from the next session of the legislature, according to the convention resolution.

The veterans also enthusiastically approved the work of the Children's Welfare Committee which will aid the orphans of ex-service men.

The Legion voted to lend its assistance to the state schools which are aiding in the military program of the nation, and also voted to approve more liberal appropriations for national defense, as outlined in the National Defense Act of June, 1920. The work of the citizens military training camps and the officers reserve corps was held by the Legion to be worthy of especial commendation.

The veterans heartily endorsed official state publication, The Oklahoma Legionnaire, and recommended its continuance. The official publication now has, according to the convention report, a circulation of approximately 20,000 copies each issue, and during the first seven months of its existence shows a profit to the department.

The Department of Oklahoma, according to latest membership figures, has passed the convention mark of 1923 by over 1000 members and has also set a new member mark for memberships as compared with total figures for year ending December 31, 1923.

The Oklahoma Legion, according to National Headquarters of the Veterans organization, is now one of the few departments showing better than 100 percent of the 1923 membership, and in consequence, the Oklahoma banners at the national meeting of the veterans at St. Paul in September will be in the lead of the grand parade of states and territories.

During the past year, the service work for disabled and distressed veterans has doubled, thousands of veterans and members of their families, receiving aid through the Legion's help. Community work was increased by every post in the Department, it was shown. The sale of poppies for the aid of the disabled comrades, was doubled during the past year. The Americanism work flourished, especially prominent being the installation of civic flag decorations in most of the cities and towns in Oklahoma. The work of the Legion toward the eradication of illiteracy was also approved and will be increased during the ensuing year.

The complete list of state officers of the Legion as elected by the convention follows:

State officers elected by the convention includes: Department Commander J. E. Hatcher, Chickasha; vice commander, Harold B. Turner, Seminole; John F. Eddleman, Ada; and Grady Lewis, Sapulpa; executive committeemen, A. E. Turner, Miami; Preston Nicholas, Okmulgee; Giles A. Kelley, Tallhina; J. Byron Sledge, Ada; C. A. McCoy, Cushing; J. B. McVey, Anadarko; Dr. Frank H. McGregor, Mangum and Charles Ralph, Ponca City. A. G. Cotton, Sallisaw, was re-elected finance officer and Josiah Chatfield, Tulsa, was also re-elected historian.

The district commanders elected include: M. R. Harrison, Claremore;

OLDEST TRIPLETS
IN COUNTRY NEAR
EIGHTIETH YEAR

Jerry W. Williams (above), Mrs. Mary Wiley (center), and Mrs. Martha Staley (below), are believed to be the oldest triplets in the United States. They will be 80 years old on Sept. 25. Williams lives in Lovington, Ill.; Mrs. Staley in Carmi, Ill., and Mrs. Wiley in Greybull, Wyo.

Dr. S. E. Mitchell, Muskogee; Lawrence Beattie, Ardmore; Jim Klingensmith, Drumright; Elmer Capshaw, Norman; Dale Smith, Duncan; Roy E. Volk, Altus and Tom Smith, Kaw City.

No appointments of state offices including department adjutant, department chaplain and managing editor and advertising manager of The Oklahoma Legionnaire, have been announced by Department Commander Hatcher.

The new department commander is a native Oklahoman, having been born in Pontotoc county 34 years ago. He was educated in state schools and graduated from the University of Oklahoma. He is principal of the Senior High School of Chickasha.

Hatcher at the beginning of the world war enlisted in the navy and spent 18 months overseas with the American fleet on duty in the North Sea.

He has been actively identified with the work of the Legion since the organization of the veterans society in Oklahoma. He has served as commander of the Chickasha Post. The new Legion leader has been active in Americanism work and eradication of illiteracy. He has also served as a member of the speakers bureau of the Legion.

ILLEGAL RAID GETS
OFFICER IN TROUBLE

NEW YORK—Robert J. Owens, federal prohibition agent, who led a raid last Friday on the home of Hugo Gilbert De Fritsch, whose wife is a relative by marriage of Chief Justice Taft, was dismissed from service by an order issued from Washington last night. Owens' dismissal followed soon after the stock of pre-prohibition liquor seized at the time was returned to the house by two of the other agents who had taken part in the raid.

The action against Owens was taken on the ground that he had misrepresented the facts when he had obtained a warrant to search the Doctor Fritsch residence.

It was also reported from Washington that the dismissed agent might be charged with perjury because of failure to inform the United States commissioner, who is sued the warrant, that the raided premises was a private residence and because of the assertion that liquor was being sold there. It was announced that action in the matter rests with United States District Attorney Hayward.

The decision to return the seized liquor came after a conference between Divisional Prohibition Chief Merrick and Mr. Hayward. Merrick said he had found that just as Mr. De Fritsch had represented, the liquor was "pre-prohibition in the strict sense of the word."

RECORDS INDICATE CALIFORNIA
SQUAW TO BE 120 YEARS OF AGE

(By The Associated Press)
YOSEMITE, Cal., Aug. 6.—Apparently authentic records indicate that "Indian Lucy," a squaw living in the Yosemite Valley, is 120 years old. She is believed to be one of the oldest women in the world.

Lucy lives in a typical Indian tepee not far from Camp Curry, but keeps out of sight of the tourists. She has difficulty in walking, but otherwise retains full possession of her faculties. She can remember clearly the events of 100 years ago. She was living in the valley when the first white men made their entrance and finds pleasure in relating the details of their occupation.

DEFEATED, GORE ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

Blames Oklahoman Straw
Vote for Defeat in Primary Just Over.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—For the second time in four years "the curtain has rung down on the political career of T. P. Gore in Oklahoma," and the former senator has returned to Washington to look after his law practice.

Just before his departure Wednesday Gore issued a statement in which he attributed his defeat to The Daily Oklahoman's straw vote.

Gore says Race Was Mistake. "I remind myself of the little colored boy who was holding a mule out to graze," Gore said. "He found an old French harp and tied the halter around his waist and struck up a lively air on the harp—the mule didn't like the music and lit out at a two-forty gait."

"When the little fellow came to and saw the white capped nurses and the doctors standing around the operating table, he said 'Doctor, that mule hadn't made more than three jumps before I realized that I had made a mistake.'"

"I went into the race with reluctance and came out of it without regrets."

"Until one week ago the tide was running strong in my favor and the outlook for success was reassuring but 40 percent of the people were waiting for a sign, a sign by which to pick the winner against Walton. The conviction that I was the best chance was spreading over the state excepting in the first and second districts."

He Blames Straw Vote.

"But The Daily Oklahoman straw vote extinguished that fire—I abandoned hope the moment I heard of the proposed vote. I knew it would not reflect the public sentiment, but create public sentiment. It unintentionally destroyed my campaign."

"The straw vote was the sign."

"I knew when the Klan endorsed Howard that I was eliminated, and I personally desired to issue a statement releasing all my friends. Many of my friends I could see were going to Howard to defeat Walton and many others were going to Walton to defeat the Klan. Counties where the opposition to Walton was solid for me wheeled into line for Howard within forty-eight hours of the election, including many of my best political friends and managers and advisers."

No Klan Row For Him.

"I was not willing to embroil myself in the Klan and anti-Klan fight to win a seat in the senate. I deplore the wasted energy devoted to this trouble. Hate is the sorriest principle upon which neighbors or nations ever attempted to conduct their affairs or relations."

"Well, I have had a good time, have met many of my old friends that I might never have seen again—after all this is one of the chief charms of life."

"This promises to be a Democratic year and if we will all unite, we can win, both in state and nation. I thank my friends and the people for their generous support and consideration."

Unknown Composition by Verdi
Found in Library at Budapest

(By The Associated Press)

BUDAPEST.—The library of the Budapest opera house has unexpectedly yielded a hitherto unknown opera by Giuseppe Verdi, entitled, "The Robbers." The libretto is none other than Friedrich Schiller's famous drama of the same title.

It appears that Verdi composed a cycle operas which have Schiller dramas for their texts. The cycle included "Don Carlos," "The Maid of Orleans," "The Robbers," and "Cabal and Love." The discovery of "The Robbers" will, it is believed lead to the musical production of the whole cycle in the near future.

LOOS SHOWS COMING FOR STAND IN ADA

Sunday, August 10th will mark the coming to Ada of the J. Geo. Loos shows for a week's engagement under the auspices of the local post of the American Legion.

The Loos Shows are considered the premier Carnival companies traveling in the southwest, having furnished the attractions for some of the main events in the country, including the Fat Stock Show at Ft. Worth, Tex., and the Wheat Show at Wichita, Kans.

The company travels on its own train of 25 cars and has about 300 people in the troupe. The show will arrive in the city Sunday, coming in over the Santa Fe and the public is invited down to watch the "big show" unload and for any one who never watched this part of the program an interesting experience is in store.

The shows are said to be high class in every respect and offer a program of diversity that will appeal to the entire family. The riding devices consist of a whip, giant sea-plane, merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, a merry mix-up, and a "kiddie swing" for the little folks.

Advance notices regarding this organization are flattering and the citizens of Ada are assured by the advance man that they will see or hear nothing that will offend in any way. The advance work has been in charge of G. Raymond Spencer and a committee from the legion. Every thing will be in readiness for the opening Monday night at 7:30 o'clock.

It is estimated that the world consumes $1,000,000,000 worth of fish each year.
